After running it you'll have a file with the name FluidData. Only that file needs to be loaded, everything else in the library can be unloaded now. There's more to the libraries than what I've told you in this short description of the library. I've shown you a lot of general usage of the library but not all of what you can do with it. For the Autodesk XForce library to work the user must be in a sub-project so meshurkey does not work when a project is open. After running meshurkey you'll need to have the free Autodesk 2011 for Windows 32 bit application. This is what creates the project file for the Autodesk XForce library. Meshurkey is a method of doing most of this work for you. So you can easily load meshurkey on any windows machine and the program does the work for you. For the very new user we recommend you download the XForce library and put that on a local drive. That way you can always go back to the file without having to setup a connection to the internet. The first time you run the autocad xforce keygen for autocad 2011 version of meshurkey you'll need to setup a connection to the internet. The steps for meshurkey are simple enough that anyone can do them. Follow these steps to setup the meshurkey connection. 1) Create a folder for meshurkey. The program will load Autocad 2011 for XForce X-Force as a network shared folder. This is required to be able to access it. The folder name can be anything you want. After creating it rename the folder to whatever you want to call it. . 2) After the program is done running you'll need to get the Autocad 2011 for Windows 32 bit
